While sorting through my records over the weekend, I found a few that I really wanted to put together in a mix. Most of these haven't been pulled off the shelves since my days at the Level and, for the most part, this pretty accurately represents my old-school trance sets at the Level, The Zone, and, to a lesser extent, The Shelter (since you couldn't really call these old-school in 2000).

This has a similar feel to my old Balearic Pumpin' mix from last year (or was it the year before that?). It's all '90s to early '00s epic / anthem trance. Although the mixing is really nothing to write home about (mostly end-to-end), I still think it flows pretty well. To maintain the epic / anthem feel, I intentionally left all the breakdowns intact (these days I usually remove one or all of them to keep the beat going) so you're getting all the tracks just as you would've heard them back in the day. All that said, you're either going to love this mix or hate it.

As usual, this mix is 100% vinyl, one-pass, live, and unrehearsed.
